

Our gang

There are many animals that display absolute pitch skills, says Daniel Levitin, a professor of psychology at McGill and former California rock-music producer. "Wolves use absolute pitch to figure out who is in their pack and who is not," he told Classic FM magazine, "and some songbirds don't recognize their own songs if they are transposed and played back to them."

Thought du jour