

Composed: A Memoir

by Rosanne Cash Viking: 2010.

Whether in Nobel prizewinners or top musicians, the origin and development of expertise fascinates scientists and the public alike. Writing with an eye for detail and an open heart, singer-songwriter Rosanne Cash offers insights into success in her eloquent memoir, Composed. After describing her childhood and lifelong quest to know her famous father Johnny Cash better, Rosanne reveals her struggles to create original songs and navigate the collisions of art and commerce that culminated in her gaining 11 number-one hits and a Grammy award.

Avoiding the constraints of her famous name, Rosanne has emerged as an authentic and distinct artist, her career representing the achievement of willpower and intellect over an industry fuelled by superficialities. Composed is an inspiring literary journey, a testimony to the power of song, love and human resilience. Although her sufferings and triumphs are her own, her insights into life's challenges are universal.
